Action Against the Star Routers.

Washington, Sept. 29.—Col. George Bliss, Hon. R. H. Brewster and Colonel Cook, counsel for the Government in the Star Route cases filed in court this morning information against ex-Assistant Postmaster-General Brady and others, and the following order was issued: U. S. Supreme Court, District of Columbia, holding criminal term of June term, 1881; and now to-wit, September 30th, 1881. On reading the affidavits of Thomas L. James and P. Henry Woodward, and on motion of George B. Corkhill, U. S. Attorney of the District of Columbia, and Wm. A. Cook, Special Assistant Attorney for the United States, it is ordered that information annexed to affidavits be exhibited against Thomas Brady, John L. French, Wm. H. Turner, George L. McDonald and Samuel P. Brown for conspiracy to defraud the United States and that the same be filed, and that warrants be issued in ordinary form are prayed for. (Signed) WALTER S. COX, Justice.

The document's charges allege conspirators with defrauding the Government of $360,000 in manipulating contracts for mail service on the particular routes between July 1, 1878, and June 30, 1880. One of the counsel for the Government, referring to the contemplated action against other persons than those mentioned in the document presented to-day, said the papers are in preparation to be presented against ex-Senator Dorsey and several other persons who held office under Government, and that counsel engaged in prosecuting Star Route cases, intend to proceed against them as fast as formal papers can be got ready. Nobody, ex-Archbishop Bliss said to-day, connected with the Star Route frauds, is to escape prosecution, except such persons as may choose to appear and give testimony against the others. Warrants are said to have been issued for the arrest of all persons charged with conspiracy in the document presented to-day, excepting General Brady.

LIGHTNING STRIKES THE STARS.

Washington, Sept. 29.—The Star Route ring are demoralized. They feel that lightning is about to strike them, but don't know, however, where it will hit. Postmaster James and McVeigh have evidence enough, they are satisfied, to convict the ring, and there is to be no delay in the prosecution. This morning a conference was held at the Arlington Hotel between James, McVeigh, George Bliss, B. H. Brewster and others, who represent the prosecution. Bliss submitted indictments which he had carefully drawn against Brady, Dorsey, McGraw, ex-Clerk French, Saulsbury, Gilmer and other Star Route contractors and beneficiaries of the ring. Bliss stated that he would pledge his professional reputation upon conviction. James and McVeigh approved the action of Bliss and these indictments will be placed in District Attorney Corkhill's hands for presentation to the grand jury.

James McVeigh and others engaged in the prosecution have no confidence whatever in Corkhill, and they make no secret of the fact. They don't charge that Corkhill has been influenced by any money consideration to favor the Star Route ring, but believe the social and personal relations, to say the least, influence him. All the officials concerned in the prosecution maintain that Corkhill has obstructed their progress from the first, and therefore was determined to prepare all the papers of presentment fully, and keep them in his hands, so all he will have to do will be to submit them to the grand jury. This is why Bliss drew up the papers, and although Bliss has some pressing business in New York, he has remained here at the request of the Postmaster and Attorney-General, to watch the prosecution and ask the Grand Jury to take hold of the cases upon their meeting next Monday. But as Corkhill insists upon presenting Guitau's case first, that will take precedence. Several persons implicated have confessed and given away operations of the ring. The prompt and determined stand of President Arthur in favor of the vigorous prosecution of ring leaders who had kept weak ones silent by assuring them if Arthur became President the whole matter should be immediately quashed, as soon as it was proper after the death of Garfield. James and McVeigh had an interview with the President about the Star Route matter. The President had already declined for the time being to accept the resignations of the cabinet, and requested them to continue in the discharge of their duties just as they would have done had President Garfield survived. Arthur assured James and McVeigh that there must be no mistake as to his purpose toward all persons who have been guilty of fraud toward the Government. If there had been a Star Route Ring and the Government had been defrauded, he wanted the guilty parties punished. General James informed the President that he was satisfied of frauds, and if he was to remain even temporarily at the head of the Postoffice Department he would insist on having the support and assistance to ensure exposure of wrong doing. Arthur assured James it was his earnest desire for him to remain where he was and conduct the Department as he had done since he took charge of it, adding that the whole country applauded James' administration. The Star Routers ascertained that Arthur could not be deceived into giving them any countenance and this seemed to be their last hope. One of the highest officials of the Postoffice Department said that in the past thirty-six hours several persons connected with the ring had surrendered and turned states evidence. It is pretty well understood that Walsh, formerly of New Orleans, who brought a few months ago several suits against Brady for the recovery of money, is one of them. The Government will conclusively prove a conspiracy, and unless some of the accused parties jump the country they will probably be in a tight place before long.

That Conkling-Jones Conference.

Chicago, September 30.—New York, the Post's Utah special: Jones, of Nevada, who has been closeted with Conkling since Wednesday night, left for New York. He was accompanied to the station by Conkling who boarded the train and remained in the car until it was ready to start. A large delegation of leading stalwarts, of Utica, escorted the senators from the carriage to the train. Some local stalwarts, including Conkling's private secretary, left on the same train with Jones. It was said this morning on trustworthy authority that the conference had been carried on with great care, the stenographer being present most of the time, to make full and complete reports. It is now generally believed that the result of the conference will have an early and important bearing on the affairs at Washington. Those who have been permitted to hear most from the inner walls of Conkling's residence the last two days, express themselves with great confidence respecting respecting Ex-Senators immediate future, and said that the fight of Conkling men for supremacy in the State convention will not be continued with more than a show of persistence, and it is also estimated to-day, by those near the Ex-Senator, that he does not care to have a seat in the Convention.

Every contributor's name will be recorded in books which will be deposited in the monument.

Grain Failure.

Chicago, September 30.—Hough & Co., commission merchants, on Change 106, Washington street, suspended this morning, owing to the heavy advance on October wheat on which they were largely short. They were reputed to be brokers for a Cincinnati clique, but refuse to affirm or deny that assertion of to give any facts concerning the affair. Their failure sent wheat up rapidly and other grains participated in the boom.

THE LITTLE MAC.

Big Strikes in the White Oaks, and Need of Mails.

EDITOR GAZETTE:—An immense growth of magnificent specimens of free wire and shot gold has been extracted from the three twenty foot shafts they have sunk on the Little Mac, while the tunnel, in now about one hundred feet, will cut any and all leads in the line at a depth of not less than 145 feet. The Homestake also made a big strike in their south tunnel last week, a vein that now shows 14 feet in width of solid mineral that assays "way up." The "Triangle" a claim situated northeast of Homestake and southwest of Little Mac, shows up a 19 inch lead at a depth of less than seven feet. At four feet ore assayed $73 to ton, and I could enumerate a good many more heavy strikes made lately which of course is very gratifying to all of us, but we are "no bueno" as to facilities for access or egress and all we now desire is a decent stage and mail route via Vegas. Our "Concord Coach" via Socorro is in very bad repute. Only last week J. H. LaRue, the leading merchant of Lincoln, was disabled to the extent of having his shoulder blade broken by being thrown from the above mentioned "Concord." He was advised by Uncle John Walkersy before starting to throw the seat (breaking of which was cause of his mishap) out and spread his blankets instead. I am credibly informed that so far as he can find out, that there is one head to the company who have contract for carrying the mails, will sue for damages. Why can we not have a good line of coaches between here and Vegas? Capitalists could be induced to come here. But when they see the "outfit" which would bring them from Socorro, remarks "none of that in mine, please." SAM.

PRESIDENT ARTHUR'S INAUGURAL

Press Comments on Its Spirit and Tone.

Nothing could be in better taste than his short inaugural address. He alludes to the tragedy by which he has been called to this high office, and to the excellency of the constitutional provisions whereby the fabric of government is secured against disturbance, and declares his purpose to carry on the work which he has begun.—Philadelphia Times (Ind.)

General Arthur has produced two state papers of importance—his letter of last fall accepting the nomination, and the brief address which he delivered on taking the oath of office in the Capitol at Washington. Both of these documents are superior to the ordinary run of such compositions, showing a breadth of conception and a felicity of expression which are rare in our Presidential literature. If he continues as he has begun, President Arthur will be known as one of the best writers among all the occupants of the Presidency.—New York Sun (Ind.)

President Arthur's address is honest and manly in tone, and dignified and straightforward in statement. It deals with the situation briefly, but satisfactorily, and conveys the impression that though death has deprived the nation of its chosen and honored head, the vacancy is filled by one who is able to direct the affairs of the Nation without danger to the government or peril to our institutions.—N. O. Times (Dem.)

President Arthur's inaugural address was in all respects what the occasion called for. It was brief, because having declared with sufficient explicitness his intention to adopt the ideas, so far as practicable, of his predecessor, he had no policy to sketch, and his tribute to the memory of the deceased President was as respectful and sympathetic as any one could desire.—N. Y. Evening Post.

President Arthur's inaugural is strong, direct, and compact. It is tender and paternal in its allusion to the sufferings and death of President Garfield, and its earnest avowal of sympathy with and approval of "all the noble aspirations which found expression in his life, the measures devised and suggested during his brief administration to correct abuses and enforce economy, to advance prosperity and promote the general welfare, to insure domestic security and maintain friendly and honorable relations with the nations of the earth," will satisfy all thinking people of the sincere intention of the new President to profit and to see that the nation shall profit, by the example and experience of his predecessor.—Washington Republican.

have given it themselves. In a word, it holds up the aspirations and the achievements of the lamented Garfield as the model and exemplar for the administration of his successor. No language could be more aptly chosen; no description could be more precise and comprehensive; no vows could be more explicit and emphatic. These are words, and the crucial acts are to come; but it is not too much to say that if the lofty spirit of this inaugural shall be the guide of its conduct the administration of President Arthur will be an assured success.—Philadelphia Press.

Garfield at Twenty.

President Garfield, while still a boy in years, was a man in brain and eloquence. An old friend described him as making a fervid and masterly speech when about twenty years old. He was tall and thin, pale and rather delicate looking; his hair, long, straight and yellow, combed back smoothly after the manner of the youth of his time, his fine face softened with a growth of whiskers unmistakably fuzzy, like down, so soft were they and fine. He had a slight stoop, a habit he took infinite pains to correct. He was cool, passionless in statement, aggressive with facts, modest in opinions.

The Atlantic & Pacific railroad company will use $5,000,000 in constructing its line westward from Vinia through Indian Territory and $10,000,000 to push the work through California. Steel rails have been laid from Albuquerque westward for 236 miles.

An accident occurred early yesterday morning at Nashotah on the Milwaukee and St. Paul main line. Two freight trains, one extra and the other regular, came into collision. No lives were lost. The damage is about $8,000.

Pierre Lorillard is not satisfied with horse-racing. He wants to own the fastest steam-yacht on the Atlantic, and offers to try his Rhoda against the swift Corsair.

An Edinburg paper tells of a vocalist who was upset in a carriage in that city, but was able, nevertheless, to appear the same evening "in three pieces."
